EXHIBITION TALK  March 8, 2–4pm
Science and Spectacle in 1800s Baltimore
Join science educator and Johns Hopkins alum Dr. Louis B. Rosenblatt for an engaging discussion about the early demonstrations of science that were presented as thrilling entertainment in venues like Peale's Baltimore Museum and the parlors of polite society. A Phantasmagoria or magic lantern show and reception will follow, with an opportunity to visit the exhibition. FREE to all with museum admission.

MEMBERS’ PROGRAM  April 12, noon–2pm
Director's Brunch & Tour
Learn from Homewood Museum Director and Curator Catherine Rogers Arthur about the landmark museum that artist Rembrandt Peale opened in Baltimore in 1814, "as an elegant Rendezvous for taste, curiosity, and leisure." This special program includes a delicious light brunch in Homewood's wine cellar.

The Director’s Brunch & Tour is an exclusive benefit of Contributor-level Membership ($250) and above. Upgrade your Membership to attend this popular event! Call 410.516.8645 or visit museums.jhu.edu/support.
