Housed in a former Gilded Age mansion surrounded by 26-acres of Italian-style gardens and woodland, Johns Hopkins’ Evergreen Museum & Library is at once an intimate collection of fine and decorative arts, rare books, and manuscripts assembled by two generations of Baltimore’s philanthropic Garrett family, and a vibrant, inspirational venue for contemporary art. Since opening to the public in 1990, the museum has served as a cultural and artistic wonderland for the Johns Hopkins and Baltimore-area communities, presenting a lively schedule of exhibitions, lectures, concerts, performances, internships, and other educational programs inspired by the Garrett family legacy of art patronage and connoisseurship, particularly that of the Honorable John Work Garrett and his wife, the inimitable Alice Warder Garrett.
